Today, nearly a billion people don't have enough to eat. Not because there isn't enough food, but because of deep injustices in the food system, and because too many of the ways we grow food are using up and destroying the natural resources on which we all rely.

But we can change it.

Together, we can create a very different future where:

- > our climate is brought under control
- > rising food prices don't throw whole families into poverty
- > poor farmers are given the support to thrive, not kicked off their land
- > more food is grown, more fairly and more sustainably.

Together, we can grow better, live better and share better. So we're focusing on four major issues to help change the world's approach to food:

Climate change – as temperatures rise, crop yields fall and extreme weather events get worse and more frequent.

Food price spikes – for many poor families who have to spend 80% of their income on food, spikes in food costs are especially destructive.

Land grabs – across the globe, secretive deals are forcing poor farmers from the land they're living off.

Small-scale farming – it's time to unleash the enormous potential of small-scale farmers in developing countries.

The Oxfam GROW campaign is ambitious, because it has to be. And together, we can turn this ambition into one amazing reality.
